

Privacy Policy and Disclaimer

The American Maritime Officers Service (AMOS) respects the privacy of visitors to our website. This Privacy Policy and Disclaimer (“Policy”) explains our online information practices. This Policy may be changed or updated from time to time. By visiting AMOS at www.amos-maritime.com (the “Site”), you agree to the terms and conditions described in this Policy

General Disclaimer

We do not endorse, nor are we responsible for the accuracy of, the privacy policies and/or terms and conditions of any third parties whose links appear on the Site. These third-party websites have separate privacy and data collection practices and we have no responsibility or liability relating to them. Documents posted on the Site may contain hypertext links or pointers to information created and maintained by other public and private organizations. These links and pointers are provided for visitors’ convenience. We do not control or guarantee the accuracy, relevance, timeliness or completeness of any linked information. Further, the inclusion of links or pointers to other websites is not intended to assign importance to those websites, endorse, recommend or favor any views expressed, or commercial products or services offered, on these outside websites, or the organizations sponsoring the websites, by trade name, trademark, manufacture, or otherwise.

Disclaimer of Liability

Every effort is made to provide accurate and complete information. However, we cannot guarantee that there will be no errors. We make no claims, promises or guarantees about the accuracy, completeness or adequacy of the contents of the Site and expressly disclaim liability for errors and omissions in the contents of the Site.

Privacy Policy

Our web servers may collect and store only the following general information about you: the type of browser that you use (e.g., Netscape, Internet Explorer), your IP address, the type of operating system that you use (e.g., Windows or Mac OS) and the domain name of your Internet service provider (e.g., America Online, Earthlink), the date and time you access our Site and what information you view. We may use this information in the aggregate to measure the number of visitors to the different sections of the Site, find out what information is the most viewed, and to help us improve the design and content of the Site and make it more useful to visitors. The Site may use “cookies.” A cookie is data that the Site can send to your browser, which may then be stored on your computer so that we can recognize you when you return. Most web browsers can be configured to accept or reject all or some cookies, or notify you when a cookie is set. Check the applicable “Help” menu of your browser to learn how to change your cookie preferences. If you set your browser not to accept cookies, you will still be able to use the Site. The Site may also use technology called “tracer tags,” which allows us to understand which pages you visit on the Site and help us optimize and tailor the Site for you and other future Site visitors. We do not use cookies or tracking mechanisms that collect personally identifying information.

You may decide to send personally identifying information, for example, in an electronic mail message asking a question or providing us with a comment or suggestion. We use personally-identifying information to respond to your comments or suggestion, and to count the number of people sending us comments. We will collect personally identifiable information (name, email address, or other unique identifier) only if specifically and knowingly provided by you. We do not knowingly collect information from children under the age of 18. We do not give, sell or transfer any personal information to any third parties.
